

As the NEC mission statement states, “New England College emphasizes experiential learning as an essential component” in the development of students, as well as “ethical and responsible citizenship, including service to the community.” Career and Life Planning (CLP) is committed to that mission.

We at CLP also know that employers increasingly look for “day-one competencies” and skills when they hire students for summer, part-time or full-time jobs after graduation. Even internships require a certain amount of professional development at the outset.

For all these reasons, CLP encourages students to participate in work-study jobs in the community, if they have been awarded Federal Work Study as part of their financial aid package. We have developed a network of community partners who seek the kind of help that work-study students can give.

To explore our community service work-study opportunities, simply click on any of the organization titles below and set up an appointment with Gene Durkee at edurkee@nec.edu. All of these opportunities can be explored as volunteer or internship possibilities as well.
