SPRING 2022 COURSE DESCRIPTIONS NOT FOUND IN CATALOG

Residential Undergraduate Catalog <https://catalog.nec.edu/>

AR 2990 Figure Drawing I

A focused, introductory study of the human figure. An understanding of the anatomy and its impact on surface form will be explored in a variety of drawing mediums. The course will emphasize observational, anatomical accuracy, and a rigorous use and awareness of line and tonal qualities. Prerequisite: AR 1610 (DRA 201) Credits 2 (formerly DRA 201)

AR 2990 Figure Drawing II

This course builds on the concepts and skills covered in DRA201 Figure Drawing I. Students will negotiate the challenge of continued anatomical accuracy while introducing more expressive approaches with respect to mark making, color, scale, and series. Prerequisite: AR1610 (DRA 201) Credits: 2 Formerly DRA202

AR 2990 Small Metals II

Students will continue to build upon traditional metalworking skills acquired in Small Metals I, while developing an expression of individual style. Projects will reinforce concepts and skills from Small Metals I to include light forging and fold forming, use of the hydraulic press, cuttlefish casting, and others

AR 3990 Sp Tp: Experiment in Practice

This is a moment to consider the integral role experimentation serves in an artistic practice. This class will investigate the scope of what “experimentation” might look like in our creative paths as we look at historical and contemporary modes, including the interdisciplinary approach of Black Mountain College and the progressive restaurant El Bulli. Students will begin to consider their own relationship with experimentation and how they might structure and embed experimentation into their process to enhance their work and refine their creative process. Fulfills Interdisciplinary Seminar (7 weeks; 2 credits)

AR 3990 Sp Tp: Collaboration in Pract

“Collaboration” is a widely used term and suggested theme in today’s artistic culture. What does “collaboration” actually mean? What does it look like? Students will unpack this concept and explore the breadth of how collaboration has manifested into cultural and creative practices. We will focus on the voices of and dynamics between collaborators, whether people, entities, processes, or materials. Emphasis will also center around the structure of collaboration and the challenges of leveraging creative tension. Students will consider and design collaborative projects and create work accordingly. Fulfills Interdisciplinary Seminar (7 weeks; 2 credits)

AR 3990 Sp Tp: Community Mural Art

Mural painting is a historic and time-honored context for artists to convey ideas and imagery to a wide audience- creating images on a large scale, in a public location, and for a relatively larger public. The course will engage students in the entire process of approaching and working with public and private clients who are sponsoring or commissioning hypothetical, and when possible, actual murals for the class to execute. Students will develop proposals and scale models to be submitted to clients for review and approval and will practice the processes and skills involved in the execution of approved commissions.

AR 3990 Sp Tp: Screenprint

This Course will survey the hand and photographic process of screenprint (aka Serigraphy) and will consist of slide presentations, demonstrations and in and out of class assignments. This course will focus on two-dimensional design principles while making intellectual connections with the printmaking process. Contemporary and art historical issues will be covered, including formal and conceptual issues.

AR 3990 Sp Tp: Color Theory

This course serves as an introduction to the digital tools and mediums available for various applications in design and art. Specific tools will be explored through hand-on tutorials and exercises that will cover a wide range of concepts and techniques. A variety of artworks and artist that utilize digital mediums will also be introduced.

AR 3990 Painting V: Advanced Painting

This is an advanced painting course that anticipates independent responsibility within a synthesis of technical and conceptual challenges. A serious review of a student's abilities, engagement, and passion will be examined and integrated in the pursuit of highly authoritative personal expression.

AR 3990 Sp Tp: Historical Methods: Pai

This course will focus on historical drawing and painting tools, methods, and techniques. This is a hands-on course introducing topics including stretching a canvas, wood panel preparation, traditional gesso, dry pigments and binders, traditional mediums and discussion to archival methods and restoration.

CAR 2990 The Anthlgy:Clbrtng 2/Cmc Pros

The Anthology: Collaborating w/Comic Professionals will explore a variety of common industry wide business practices. Students will learn how to accurately scan, color correct and ready their work for both print and web presentation. Through weekly lectures and instructor guided demonstrations, students will create their own websites, web store, social media handles, newsletter emails. A variety of approaches to presenting work will be sought including web comics, zines, self-publishing and finding publishers to work with. Weekly exercises focusing on how to create a pitch, world build, character ideation and how to wrap all that together into a powerful PowerPoint presentation will be produced. This class will also feature multiple interviews with industry professionals where students will have the opportunity to ask focused questions. (4Credits)

CW 3990 Graphic Novel Storytelling

This course is an exploration of the sequential art storytelling found in graphic novels, comic books and manga. Through the close examination of graphic novels assigned in this course, students will learn about the interdependent storytelling relationship of the visuals and texts, as well as how to write their own graphic novel scripts.

ILL 3990 Community Studio

Community Studio gives students the opportunity to work with local businesses and organizations to create compelling solutions to real world illustration assignments. Students will be required to complete a series of individual and group projects. Most assignments will have the possibility of a financial award for pieces chosen for printed public use. This course gives students the experience of working successfully with professional clients. Standard businesses practices will be a primary focus of this course along with the continued development of a personal voice.

ILL 3990 Sp Tp: Adv Business of Illust

Advanced Business of Illustration covers the standard business practices utilized by professionals working in the field of illustration. In this course students will learn different approaches to marketing their work through mailed printed samples and social media channels. Ample focus will be placed on the development of each student's web presence. The development of a professional, market-ready website will be encouraged. Students will learn about standard contracts, invoicing practices, and pricing guidelines. This course is highly recommended for all senior illustration majors.

LAS 1110 Philosophy and the Natural Envrnmnt

Philosophy and the Natural Environment is a beginning topical exploration into humanity and its complex relationship with Nature. Looking through the lens of three distinct periods in history, students will engage in analyzing the thought of some of the most pivotal thinkers in the history of philosophy. Time will be spent exploring Ancient society and its relationship with Nature focusing the Mesopotamian, Egyptian, Greek and Roman worlds. The course will then move into the Medieval Age exploring basic notions of Christian theology from both the Western and Eastern European mindsets. Following this study, students will then end the course with a study of the basic philosophical tenets of the Modern World and its relationship with Nature through the changing ideas of the Renaissance, Reformation, Scientific Revolution and the Age of Revolutions. Philosophy and the Natural World ultimately leads students to contemplate how various cultural mindsets, religious beliefs and scientific findings have shaped each era's understanding of the unique relationship that humans have with Nature.

LAS 2140 Ethics & Contemporary Social Problems

The course considers ethical dilemmas and contemporary social problems that can arise when the individual's values conflict with those of the organization, society or world system. Within this course, students use case studies, their own experiences, and current events to examine ethical tensions within the framework of both personal and social outcomes. Students will study popular ethical theories to better understand the perspective and reasoning behind such tensions. From theory evaluation, various ethical models, as well as classroom exercises and discussions, students will enhance their critical thinking skills as well as deepen their understanding of the perspectives of others.

PHO 3990 Sp Tp: The Photobook

The photography book has been an essential tool for photographers since the invention of photography itself. For many photographers, the photo book is a significant vehicle for the display of their work and the communication of their vision to a mass audience. This class will explore the ways in which one can make a photo book through historical and contemporary applications. Students will learn techniques for creating photography books including the editing process, sequencing, design, and layout. Students will be asked to create bodies of work that they can then use these skills to design their own books. Students will be asked to use special collections and other resources to research and comprehend different styles and movements that have shaped the history of the photo book. Each student will create books using an on-demand print house as well as handmade processes.

PHO 3990 Sp Tp: The Handmade Photo

This course explores the history and practice of 19th century photographic printing techniques, including the cyanotype, albumen, and the palladium print. Students will spend time in class making images with a 4x5 view camera. The remaining class time will be devoted to mastering the craft aspects of creating hand-coated prints using light sensitive chemistry and a variety of fine art papers and related contact printing equipment.

PHO 3990 Topics: Moving Image

The "Moving Image" course is a cross disciplinary course for both designers and photographers. Students will learn the language and process of producing time-based media, which include short video pieces, interviews, documentaries, works of art, student-authored stories, and other forms of visual communication. Students will learn the concepts and proper technique for recording accompanying sound. Students will learn video and sound editing techniques using the Adobe creative suite.
